Narrative ABOUT

I am a freelance writer. I am currently narrative lead on the Earth's Embers podcast and the Blood & Song livestream, as well as regularly producing content for Dungeons & Dragons 5th Edition via the DM's Guild. A large focus of my work is to incorporate elements of my mixed racial heritage, bringing an Anglo- Italian- Indian perspective to adventures. I've got a deep passion for world building, and strive to create lore rich narratives that feel grounded in reality.

I have collaborated with developers from Digital Extremes, Ubisoft & Rebellion on a personal project currently under development as a narrative consultant, and as a writer's assistant to a showrunner for a leading streaming company on a currently unannounced project (references available).

My time spent as a teacher has given me high stakes real world experience of working within and leading teams, project managing and adaptive learning skills, and also included winning a national award in 2016 for outstanding results.
